To Whom It May Concern,

I am the Production Manager for The Tracker Factory where I have the pleasure of working closely with Rachael Lawrence who is part of the team brought in to design, develop and implement our GPS tracking and accounting software. Rachael has worked on several sections of programming that I have been involved in using and applying to our company and client needs.

Rachael was initially welcomed into the project in 2014 during the design phase as a Software Tester with Renfell Engineering Pty Ltd. Here she adapted to an unfamiliar technical environment and used her judgment to create scenarios aimed at identifying strengths and weaknesses of the system. As the project progressed, a need was seen to train Rachael in several computer programming languages solidifying her with a larger role within the project as a Technical Specialist. She also took on a role with developing graphic design components for the client's new online medium and documenting aspects of the system with technical writing, demonstrating her diversity. The project progressed into the hands of Epicycles Pty Ltd with Rachael seamlessly transitioning along with it.

As Rachael works primarily from Canberra with conference calls her main point of contact with the team and client, she has built a strong level of communication with her ability to adapt to change and has taken this in her stride. When completing tasks she demonstrates a high level of independence with her initiative and critical thinking, manipulating components from the original purpose to create a more flexible end product.

Rachael worked hard to complete her Bachelor of Science at the end of 2014 and has since undertaken her own personal projects to develop her skills further.

One of Rachael's most outstanding qualities is her ability to break even the most complex problems down to the core issues, and then finding smart, simple and elegant solutions.

Rachael would be an asset to any employer and I give my highest recommendation for any endeavor she chooses to pursue. Do not hesitate to contact me with any questions about Rachael or her background.
